THE EASTERN RAINS.

In New Jersey.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 25.—The lower part of the city is [illegible] thousands of dollars worth of property [illegible]. The rainfall [illegible] over [illegible] Stores and warehouses [illegible] Burnet street are [illegible] water up to the counters and goods afloat. People are in boats on the lower street and bridges are thronged with people gazing at the flood.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 25.—Bridges are washed away, lumber yards floated off, mill property badly damaged, roadways impassable, live stock drowned, and railroad travel suspended. Canal bridges are wrecked and the canal bank has given away.

JERSEY CITY, Sept. 25.—By the giving way of a bridge over [illegible] creek a freight train was precipitated into the stream, and Edward Wonder killed and the engineer and brakeman probably injured.

Rahway's Loss.

RAHWAY, N. J., Sept. 25.—The flood is particularly severe in this city and Union county. There are 27 bridges crossing Rahway river and its branches within the city limits. Six of those destroyed will cost over $10,000 to rebuild and repair. At Monroe street the bridge, while a crowd were on it, one of the arches gave way, and John Wilson, a prominent citizen, was carried under an arch. His remains were taken out this morning.

The Losses Enormous.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Sept. 25.—Rain is falling heavily again to-day, causing additional damage. Half a million dollars will not repair the damage done in the counties of Union, Somerset and Middlesex, to say nothing of the losses to railroad and canal companies, which are enormous.

In Connecticut.

WATERBURY, Conn., Sept. 25.—Three inches of rain in three hours fell here Saturday night and the streets are inundated, cellars flooded, and Hill street is impassable for teams. Naugatuck river has overflowed. The supports of a costly iron bridge in process of construction were washed away and the completed portion fell, causing a loss of $15,000.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The passenger train for Fishkill was detained by a bad washout near Paterson, N. J., and Saturday night's trains did not meet here until Sunday afternoon.

Cessation of the Storm.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The storm which began last Wednesday evening, observed Sunday as a day of rest and resumed business this morning with renewed vigor. This afternoon, however, the rain ceased and clearing weather seems at hand.

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 25.—Rain is falling again but the river is subsiding rapidly. Loss in the vicinity is beyond calculation.

FIRES.

Sugar Refinery Burned.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—The Franklin sugar refinery, Harrison, Havemeyer & Co.'s immense brick structure, on Front and Almond streets was partly destroyed by fire this morning. Although three alarms were sent out it was not got under control until the block bounded by Delaware avenue, Swanson, Almond and Bainbridge streets was burned. The block contained two large buildings, that facing on Delaware avenue being a mould house, nine stories high, and that in the rear of the mould house and extending to Swanson street being a new building called the filter house. These buildings were filled with sugar in process of manufacture and ready for delivery, and both structures and their contents are in ruins. The centrifugal house and boiler house in the block from Swanson to Penn streets and Almond to Bainbridge streets was saved. One thousand men are out of employment. It is not known if any were killed. Louis Lourzen, a Swede and one of the foremen is however missing. He was last seen attempting to extinguish the flames after his fellow workmen made their escape from the building for a long time. The refinery is burning all day and night. Nothing is known as to the origin of the fire. It is remarked however it was burning nearly an hour before the alarm was given. Workmen who are trained in the use of fire apparatus endeavored to subdue the flames without the aid of the fire department. Different members of the firm vary in their estimates of the loss but it is believed now the loss will be $1,000,000; insurance $575,000.

STRIKES.

A Strike Averted.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 25.—The differences between the locomotive engineers of the Gould railroads and the officers of that system have been amicably settled and a strike prevented.

Demand Advanced Wages.

ROTHERHAM, Eng., Sept. 25.—Delegates representing twenty thousand miners at the conference to-day decided to demand an advance of fifteen per cent. in wages.

MEXICO.

The Mexicans Waking up.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 25.—The Mexican government has ordered the establishment of a permanent exposition of Mexican products in Berlin. Similar expositions will be established in other European cities and in the United States. French influence is actively opposing a reciprocity treaty between Mexico and the United States.

CENTRAL AMERICA.

Panama Earthquakes.

PANAMA, Sept. 25.—Earthquakes here have continued since the 7th, and with much damage to this city and Aspinwall. Losses here are a quarter of a million and $100,000 in Aspinwall, but only four deaths.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Melville at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Engineer Melville called upon Acting Secretary Walker at the navy department this afternoon. When Secretary Chandler returns the records and articles found with DeLong's party, now in custody of Melville, will be examined in presence of Mrs. DeLong, who has been notified to attend.

NEWS NOTES FROM EUGENE.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

EUGENE, Sept. 25.

A. S. Patterson, Esq., is confined to his home by sickness.

Mr. Gus. Hickssbier has a force of men employed laying the foundation of the bank for Messrs. Hovey, Humphrey & Peet.

Our merchants are laying in large stocks of fall and winter goods and good times will prevail through the fall and winter season.

The design for the bank now building was drawn by Mr. G. H. Parks and is in point of architecture as neat a design as I have ever seen. Mr. Parks has had a large amount of building the present season, and has erected several very beautiful residences of his own design, stamping him as an architect of the first class.

The Presbyterian church of this place is fast nearing completion and is a very imposing edifice. It has a tall spire and belfry, library room, auditorium hall, school room and chapel, and in point of elegance and convenience far excels any building of a similar character in Eugene. Rev. Dr. Geary is pastor of the Presbyterian church, having very ably and acceptably filled the pulpit for seven or eight years. W. H. Abrams, the contractor for building the church, thinks it will be completed ready for service the coming month.

We are having an unusually fine fall, greatly facilitating farm work. Our farmers are constantly hauling grain and storing at the Eugene City flouring mills and warehouses along the railroad. We are reliably informed that the mill will store this year double the amount of wheat of any previous year, and although they have just erected two new wheat cleaners in addition to those in operation before this year, the mill is continually blocked from morning to night. A great many farmers are selling their grain at the market price.

If any doubt that Eugene is prosperous a trip to this place will convince them of their mistake. A large number of new buildings have been erected and trades and labor of all kinds have been taxed to their utmost. Money is plentiful and the old cry of "hard times" is no longer heard. Every dwelling house in Eugene is occupied and a great demand for more. Real estate is rapidly advancing and but little of it offered for sale. The cause of this improvement in business is owing to the great impetus the building of the northern and southern railroads has given to trade and finance generally, besides this wheat and hops have turned off an average crop, and prices for wheat moderately good and for hops very high.

ALBANY NOTES.

[OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

ALBANY, Sept. 25.

The total amount of wheat stored here up to date is 140,000 bushels.

The new First Presbyterian church slowly approaches completion.

Mrs. L. E. Blain has been quite ill for a week or so, but is now improving.

Two brothers named Smith are holding religious meetings in a tent in the lower part of town. According to their calculations the world is to come to an end on Friday this week. "We know not when the end cometh."

The same evening a fire was discovered in the frame building north of the Democrat office, owned by Mrs. Etta Brown. It was soon put out by water from a hydrant. Damage nominal. Both fires are thought to have been incendiary.

On Wednesday morning [illegible] Wheeler, clerk in Foshay & Mason's drug store, discovered a small fire in the rear of the wooden building back of the store. A few buckets of water put it out, but had it burned [illegible] would have had a larger item [illegible] as there were 300 gallons of kerosene in F. & M.'s [illegible]

The Khedive Tendered a Grand Reception in Cairo.

ARABI PASHA CHANGES HIS VIEWS OF THE ENGLISH.

Greece Gains the Disputed Territory from Turkey—Swiss Engaged for Police in Egypt—Overdank Confesses his Crime.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

ALEXANDRIA, Sept. 25.—The khedive and Sir Edward Malet, British consul general, departed for Cairo this morning. The Bengal cavalry escorted them on their way to the station. The route was lined with troops and the station occupied [illegible] English, but [illegible] Egyptian troops [illegible] Members of the ministry went to Cairo in the same train.

[illegible], Sept. 25.—Abdellah Pasha and Suleiman [illegible] have been sent to Cairo as prisoners under military guard.

The Khedive's Reception.

CAIRO, Sept. 25.—Elaborate preparations are making for reception of the khedive. The order of his route of entry will be changed in such a way as shall pass the homes of Arabi Pasha and [illegible] Pasha. It is thought [illegible] will be properly conducted. European residents and European officers in service of the khedive violently denounce Arabi Pasha. They say hanging is too good for him.

The khedive and Egyptian ministers, accompanied by Sir Edward Malet, arrived at 3:15 this forenoon and were received at the depot by the duke of Connaught and General Wolseley. A detachment of grenadiers was drawn up on the station platform and Household cavalry lined the approach to the depot. Royal artillery fired a salute on the arrival of the train, the band of grenadiers playing anthems. The khedive, duke of Connaught, General Wolseley and Sir Edward Malet entered the same carriage and were driven to Ghezireh palace. The streets through which they passed were densely crowded and lined by almost all the English and Indian troops now here. Natives gathered along the route numbering many thousands, and gave the khedive a very friendly welcome. The ulemas, as well as the sheikh of El Azhar mosque, met the khedive at the depot.

Arabi's Change of Views.

CAIRO, Sept. 25.—Arabi Pasha says the best thing the English could do for Egypt would be to send all notables and other leading men connected with the rebellion out of the country. If they do not do so, vengeance will surely be wreaked upon them after their departure. Seeing the manner in which the British treat their prisoners and wounded, Arabi says they are a great people and that he is heartily sorry he fought them. He asserts he never thought the English would send a large army to assist the khedive, and so he was led into the war. He denies that he had any communication with the sultan during the war.

The Egyptian Police.

GENEVA, Sept. 25.—The men engaged for police in Egypt must not be under 25 nor over 40 years of age. Frenchmen or Italians are ineligible. The pay is from 1500 to 3000 francs.

Overdank Confesses.

VIENNA, Sept. 25.—Overdank confesses he drew lots with a confederate to decide who should attempt to take the life of the emperor, and he intended to throw bombs into the garden and Miramar castle.

The high court of Venice has given an opinion in the case of the recent arrest, that extradition of the assassins shall take place if they conspire against the life of the emperor of Austria on Italian territory.

Greece Gains Her Point.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 25.—The sultan has ordered immediate surrender to Greece of the whole frontier fixed by the international commission. Representatives of the powers who at the invitation of the Greek ambassador were to discuss the Turco-Greek frontier question, dissolved their meeting, leaving the settlement of the difficulty to Turkey.

Suspected Murderers Arrested.

DUBLIN, Sept. 25.—Six more men, mostly released suspects, have been arrested in connection with the murder of the Huddy at Lough Mask. Police claim distinct evidence against three of them in consequence of information elicited during the examination of Kerrigan, held for the same crime.

The Irish Nationalists.

DUBLIN, Sept. 25.—A conference of the Irish Nationalist society will be held on the 17th of October. Sessions private. Towards the end of the year there will be a great Irish national convention to review the position and condition of the country. Delegates to the convention will be elected by the people.

New Evictions.

DUBLIN, Sept. 25.—Dillon will retire from parliament on account of ill health.

Military and police of county Mayo have evicted fifty families the last few days in the barony of Ennis, and people have been ordered not to shelter them.

An Untruthful Report.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Dublin papers authoritatively deny there has been any large failure there lately. It is believed the firm of Geo. Roe & Co., distillers, reported failed, is solvent.

Joined the Committee.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Dr. Claughton, bishop of St. Albans, General E. D. Burnaby and Geo. J. Romanes, secretary of the Linnean society, have joined the Longfellow memorial committee.

Papal Appointments.

ROME, Sept. 25.—At consistory to-day Monsignor Czaki, papal nuncio at Paris, and Monsignor Abatucci, nuncio at Madrid, were created cardinals. The pope also preconized one English and several French bishops, and appointed a number of prelates to sees in America and Oceanica.

A Deficit Expected.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 25.—Baron Van Lynden, minister of finance, announced in the states-general to-day that he estimated there would be a deficit in the budget of 26,000,000 florins.

The Attilio Afloat.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The Italian bark Attilio from San Francisco, ashore at Fleetwood, has floated.

The Flathead Right-of-Way Treaty.

Helena, Mt., Herald: The return of the commissioners from the Flathead reservation discloses the terms of the treaty entered into for the right-of-way for the Northern Pacific. We understand that at first the modest demand was made for a million dollars, about the same as for running a road through the better portion of New York city. But Indian generosity is made manifest by the liberal discount from the asking price in accepting finally the $16,000 offered. If true, as stated by the Missoulian, that it takes only 1 12 acres, that is, for the width of 200 feet across the 55 miles of reservation, this is paying at the rate of more than $13 per acre. And, if it is further true, as reported, that not 5 of the whole of this 1212 acres could be regarded as arable, it would be paying at the rate of $100 per acre for arable land, and about $10 per acre for the rest, which, we presume, to be much like most of the upland and foot-hill surface of Montana. We have figured it out that supposing the Flathead reservation is an average chip of the Montana block, the whole territory is worth at this appraisal $1,215,255,000, without counting improvements, personal property or mines. At this rate Montana is worth nearly enough to settle the national debt, without considering the rest of the country. Again, the land grant to the Northern Pacific is roughly estimated at 47,000,000 acres, and if the whole could be marketed at the rate paid the Flatheads, it would return the handsome little sum of $611,000,000, or enough to build twenty thousand miles of railroad at the cost of $30,000 per mile. We presume the company would sell at some loss. And these are the poor, simple savages who have no idea of the values of property, and are swindled by all who deal with them, and the great United States has to be invoked to give its consent to the little trades that these simple-minded wards may feel inclined to make! Why, the shrewdest of our real estate dealers can't hold a candle to these savages as land traders, and it is fortunate for the intelligence of our rising cities that the Flathead reservation is as far away as it is.

But we are glad, nevertheless, that the treaty has been made; glad for the Indians, for they are pretty fair, as Indians run; glad for the company, because it can go on with its work without any further obstacle or delay; glad for the territory and all its people and interests, because there seems now no remaining doubt of the completion of the road next season, in good time and shape.

High Prices.

Farm, Herd and Home for September.

It is not probable that the price of wheat will go much below 80 cents in the western markets, and a possibility that it may reach $1 and beyond before next spring. The fact that there is an immense crop of new wheat to be marketed is undeniable. The further fact is, however, lost sight of, that there is a comparatively small stock of old wheat on hand. Taking the small surplus of old wheat into consideration, and the great foreign demand that is certain to come, it seems probable that the gold that has been going to the old country for goods will now begin to flow back again to pay for our grain. The corn crop will, undoubtedly, be a short one, and this additional fact will have some influence in stiffening up the price of wheat for future delivery and supply.

The prospect for good crops of wheat in European countries is not promising. The harvest in Great Britain was too late, and hence the quality has proven to be poor. The troubles in Egypt will prevent her getting supplies from there or India as quickly as heretofore. France has a crop to sow what [illegible] turned out and will have to import largely. [illegible] European countries the crops are variable, [illegible] generally indicate less than an average yield of wheat. In some sections of Russia the wheat crop [illegible] and the surplus for export is likely to be less than last year. It is thought that Egypt has not had [illegible] [illegible] want our surplus wheat, and will take [illegible] at remunerative prices. [illegible]

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

The Veterans' Home.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—The board of directors of the Veterans' Home met to-day. The report of a committee and experts appointed to investigate the management found that some looseness in the method of keeping accounts had been found, but that the association had suffered no loss thereby. Steps are taken to prevent further similar errors. Total receipts to date $33,935; on hand, $30,750 15. A proposition of a site was then considered. The report of the committee recommended the purchase of the Clark tract in Napa valley of 900 acres for $18,000. A number of the directors strongly recommended the purchase, but the matter was finally laid over till next meeting.

Railroad Case Decided.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—In the railroad tax case of San Mateo county against the Southern Pacific railroad company, the United States circuit court decides that the assessment of property of the company upon which taxes in the suit were levied, as invalid on two grounds: First, that in making it no deduction was allowed for the mortgage on the property, such deduction being allowed on the assessment of property of individuals; and second, that no opportunity was given the company to be heard before the state board of equalization respecting the assessment, and there must therefore be a new assessment.

Convention Organized.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—The republican municipal convention nominated by the recent primary under the auspices of ward clubs, met to-day and organized by electing A. G. Booth president, with district vice presidents, secretaries, etc. The convention appears to be a very respectable body.

Gas Explosion.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—An explosion of gas occurred about half-past eleven this morning in the basement of No. 1 Montgomery street. The floor was raised up, plate glass windows shattered, the office of D. W. Hitchcock badly wrecked, and tailor shop of Peter Short considerably damaged.

San Jose Races.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 25.—The second annual exhibition of the San Mateo and Santa Clara agricultural society opened to-day under very favorable conditions. The display of fruits and wines was large and creditable, and stock entries about the same as last year. The attendance at the races was not as large as usual on the first day.

First race. Trotting, 2:40 class, the following started: Manon, Big Lizz, Vanderlyn and Mosco. The race was won in three straight heats by Manon. Time 2:25½, 2:26, and 2:25. Vanderlyn second.

Second race. Trotting for 2:25 class, Cora, Director and Starr King entered. Director won in three straight heats. Time 2:28¼, 2:26 and 2:25¼.

Killed by Cars.

LODI, Cal., Sept. 25.—Chas. Greaves aged about 50, while attempting to get on the cars was instantly killed this morning.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

Murder at Mount Idaho.

WALLA WALLA, Sept. 25.—About a year since James Donovan, an old miner, mysteriously disappeared from Mount Idaho, and no clue could be gathered as to his whereabouts. A Statesman special states that the remains with the head and arms cut off have been found in a garden at Mount Idaho, and several Chinamen are under arrest charged with committing the deed.

IDAHO.

Killed in a Mining Difficulty.

BOISE CITY, Sept. 25.—Wm. Hastings shot and killed Wm. Baxter at Silver City, Idaho, to-day. Baxter was going to work at the Morning Star mine, and it appears Hastings had some claim to the ground. As Baxter approached the mine, Hastings fired from behind some rocks about 50 feet distant, lodging fourteen buckshot in Baxter's body.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Victoria Notes.

VICTORIA, Sept. 24.—Yesterday afternoon, while the Lorne party were at the water works, a little girl of Mr. Stephens of the hotel fell and dislocated one of her arms. Princess Louise expressed the greatest sympathy for the little sufferer and assisted in alleviating her distress, holding her in her arms, stilling the child's cries and prescribing for her comfort until the arrival of a surgeon from the city, for whom the governor general, at the princess' request, telephoned.

The mail steamship Idaho arrived in Esquimalt harbor last evening from Alaska. Mr. Oakford, collector of customs, was among the passengers.

The U. S. steamer Wachusetts was at Sitka, U. S. steamer Hassler at Tongass narrows and U. S. steamer Adams at Bella Bella.

The news is unimportant at Juneau city. The miners has formed a provisional government and appointed a constable. They resolved to banish liquor from the town and to prevent the importation of molasses, from which liquor is distilled.

About $12,000 in gold dust came down from Takou, where the mines are paying fairly.

To-morrow the vice regal party will visit the manufacturing establishments in this city and in the evening will hold a drawing room. On Wednesday the governor general will open the agricultural show in this city, which is to last four days.

New Wrinkles of Fashionable Women.

Two new wrinkles are charged upon the fashionable women of New York by a correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer. The first he fiddling. "It is not rare now to meet a finely dressed girl with a boy carrying one of those black, coffin-shaped boxes which formerly were lugged by professional musicians only. She is on her way to or from her violin lesson. Pretty soon she will stand up before the guests in her papa's parlor, tuck one end of a fiddle under her chin, and torture the company's ears while delighting their eyes. However horrible may be the noise produced, she will look well during the process of making it." The second freak of fashion is represented to be to pray on genuine prayer rugs from the east, such as a Mohammedan uses. "They are usually about three by four feet in size, and can be distinguished by the design, which always represents one large figure at one end and pointed at the other. Places are indicated for the hands and knees. Devout women procure the real things from an importer, and, without facing Mecca, bumping their heads on the floor, or removing their shoes and stockings, like the sons of the prophet, still actually do use them to kneel on while praying. They are said to be a great comfort."

Monopoly of Tobacco.

The Italian government tobacco monopoly is a lucrative affair. It is farmed out to a company, which paid last year $21,000,000 for the privilege. This company has declared a dividend of 157 per cent. for the year, and during that time has had a net outlay of $9,000,000, against sales amounting to $23,000,000, which means a profit of 250 per cent. All the tobacco used at 17 per cent. was native, the rest being purchased chiefly Kentucky, but including some from India and Brazil. The contract between the government and the company will expire next year.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Southern Oregon.

Sorghum mills are grinding and a large quantity of superior syrup will be made in Jackson county this fall.

The number of hogs that are now being put in shape for market in Jackson county is larger than ever before.

The county commissioners of Jackson county have engaged 100,000 brick at $9 per thousand for the construction of the new court house at Jacksonville.

Joe. Riley of Little Butte precinct was thrown from a fractious horse the forepart of last week and received injuries from which he died not long afterwards.

Pinkeye has reached Jackson county and a great many horses in the region of Jacksonville are suffering with it. No serious consequences have resulted as yet.

A large amount of hay has been put up in Lake county for next winter's use, but not so much as formerly, as a great portion of the cattle will be driven out before bad weather commences.

S. B. Grubb of Ashland precinct, whose team ran away with him a few weeks ago and threw him under the wagon in such a manner that it passed over his body, died from his injuries last week.

Jacksonville Times: R. Brackenridge of Roseburg, the marble worker, died on the 8th, after a short illness, produced, as is supposed, by inhaling the noxious gasses from the body of the late L. L. Williams.

Washington Territory.

The old court house of Pierce county, at Steilacoom was sold at auction last week for $281.

There have been 1,800,000 feet of logs got out this season at McElroy's logging camp on the Samish.

The total attendance upon the Seattle public schools is 653. All of the rooms are overcrowded and parents are anxiously awaiting the completion of the new school building.

Post-Intelligencer: Messrs Austin & Gilman have just returned from Bellingham bay, where for three months they have been engaged in surveying and platting the townsite of Whatcom. Much time was consumed in finding the original corner-stakes, which time had obliterated. The area surveyed and platted embraces an entire section, or 640 acres, and includes three or four additions to the old town of Whatcom.

LaConner Mail: The prospects of LaConner were never better than at present. The hotels are overcrowded, new buildings are going up in every direction and the business of our merchants is steadily increasing. LaConner has indeed a bright outlook for the future. The farmers hereabouts are busily engaged in threshing their grain. The flats dotted here and there with steam threshers, together with the men necessary to run them, present a picture pleasant for the eye to rest upon, as well as being the strongest proof that the industrious, hard-working farmer is reaping a rich harvest as a just reward for his season's labor.

"CAUCUS" AND "THE MACHINE."

The Dalles Times-Mountaineer, a republican paper of standing and worth, has the following considerate article on "caucus" and "the machine":

The senatorial contest now raging in Salem brings into prominence that principle in modern politics known as "the caucus." A meeting of the republican members of the legislature was called one day last week and 36 responded. Of these, on ballot, Mitchell received 34, and Dolph 1 and Failing 1. The other eighteen republicans refused to go into caucus, and in no manner are bound by its actions. No one will deny but that each of these representatives followed his own inclination in going into the convention or staying out. But there is a certain class of political philosophers who advocate the theory that such action by a majority binds not only those who acted with them, but all members of the party. This philosophy it will be seen, is suited to machine rule, and with careful management would perpetuate the existence of one set of officials almost indefinitely.

Viewing the caucus system from this selfish standpoint, it may be desirable for those who have certain ends to accomplish; but does it carry out to the fullest extent the free spirit of the institutions upon which our country was founded; and in this connection the inquiry is forced upon our mind if the caucus rule is the correct one for party government, what rights have the minority? In the constitution of our country, there are certain safeguards thrown around minorities against which majorities have no right to clash, and however large a majority may be, the smallest minority can dare it to trample upon a single right.

This may not appear synonymous with the internal government of a separate political organization. The party in signifying its preference for candidates, generally acts in its representative capacity, that is, by conventions. The delegates elected to these vote frequently according to their own opinions, never taking into consideration the wishes of the people whom they represent, and in very many instances the vote of the majority is by no means an expression of the popular will. But in these conventions we can see how the caucus plan operates as a party lash, to whip every one into ranks. If any one has an opinion antagonistic to the majority or not in harmony with them, he has no right to even an honest expression. He must keep silent, and obey the behests of the larger number. He is no longer a representative of the wishes of those who elected him, but he is simply a political wheel whose cogs are fitted into a larger one, and whose actions are not dictated by any intellectual process, but simply the result of a mechanical operation. For many years the old democratic party became a machine like in its actions that Tammany Hall of New York city—a cluster of master minds dictated and governed the politics of the nation. The caucus controlled everything, from the ward meeting to the national convention, and the will of the rank and file of the party was never considered. Every one knows the final result, when the great Tammany ring collapsed through its own inherent corruption. The caucus plan will naturally lead to machine rule and bossism, and the effects of these are not only to ignore the people's will, but they open the gates to the most corrupting influences. If we desire honesty in politics, we must uphold those men who have the bravery and firmness to stand up for their honest convictions, and cannot be whipped into betraying the people whom they represent, by the mechanical working of the caucus.

"The farmers all say, that for man and beast, they find nothing equal to St. Jacobs Oil," writes Hon. S. H. Yoder, Globe Mills, Pa.

TUESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 26, 1882.

THEIR JUSTIFICATION.

They are truest republicans who hold that their party is above any one man in it, and who refuse to sacrifice their party to any one man's behoof. Herein is a vindication, in a political sense, of the republican representatives who refuse to be dragooned into Mitchell's support. In a moral point of view they find their vindication in the undoubted propriety of refusing to vote for a man whose personal history is of such a character that no representative of the people has a right to ignore it. The pretense that no one is justified in making an inquiry into the personal character of a candidate for public position, is absurd. The personal character of the man is the man. It is the key to all his acts. It determines his course. If he be a politician it informs us as to his methods, and throws light on all his relations to public affairs.

The opposition of the eighteen members is by no means of a petulant, captious or factional kind. It is based simply on their perception of the impropriety of voting for a man whom they cannot but regard as unworthy, and whose election would neither do credit to the state nor be satisfactory to their party. They began with a resolve not to do themselves discredit, play false to their constituents, or sacrifice their party to one man's selfish ambition. This resolve they have maintained in a firm, dignified and manly way. Nothing could be more commendable than their steady firmness. They hold the issue now in their hands. It is now in their power to gain the result for which their courageous stand was taken. Any change from the position which they have so far invincibly held would be a surrender of the object for which they have contended—a surrender at the very time when that object is just about to be secured. Patience and continued firmness on their part will prevent Mitchell's election. For the collapse of the effort in his behalf they will not be required to wait much longer. He is struggling to secure democratic votes, but democrats who have reputations at stake cannot go to him. His own closest followers see the growing hopelessness of their effort. Invention is exhausted, reason is fatigued, experience has given judgment, but obstinacy is not yet conquered.

The opposition to Mitchell is a protest against his character as a man, his record in private and public life, his methods as a politician, his shameless persistence as an office-seeker, his conversion of places in public service to base uses for his own advancement, his unscrupulous gang of followers whom he habitually gathers and holds around him, and the low moral tone of all his actions. Here is enough to justify opposition; enough, indeed, to call out a resolute and invincible purpose never to yield to the desperate effort to elect him.

The contest has gone far enough, too far indeed; and now it is time for those who are voting reluctantly for Mitchell, of whom there are not a few, to take action. They have gone as far as any possible obligation could require them to go. They certainly do not wish this contest carried on to the disruption of their party. Mitchell's strenuous and continued efforts to secure his election by democratic votes absolves them from the obligation of a republican caucus which was of more than doubtful authority in the beginning. It is well and widely known that many of them do not want him elected, but are hoping for some other result. Now, therefore, it is time for them to quit. They have a duty to perform to the state and their party, and no man should be permitted to stand in the way of it. The republican members of the legislature can agree on some man and elect him. It is time they were doing it. It is time the absurd notion that there is only one man were discarded. The people have no patience with it, and will commend and applaud their representatives who reject it. H. W. S.

THE TIME HAS COME.

For an entire week and through nine ballots the thirty-six republicans who went into caucus at Salem have voted faithfully for the nominee of that caucus. We had no word of criticism for the men who, under a sense of party duty, mistaken though we believe it to be, have voted for John H. Mitchell. But in doing so, several have done violence to their own judgments and outraged the sentiment of the people whose representatives they are. The caucus which met at Salem a week ago was not a party caucus. It was the caucus of a faction, and the purpose of its call was the nomination of J. H. Mitchell. Nobody doubts that it was a put-up job, and no man who went into it opposed to Mitchell's nomination had any hope of making his opposition felt. The cry of "party usage" drove good men reluctantly into a pretended and fraudulent party caucus. Faithfully have these men stood by the will of that caucus. Personal indifference, hope of party harmony, public sentiment—all have been sacrificed on the altar of so-called "party usage." But the case is hopeless. It is evident that a majority of the legislature do not want Mitchell, the people wherever they have been heard from have said they do not want him; it is time he were made to stand aside. Admitting the binding force of caucus, admitting that the mis-called caucus at Salem was a caucus, it is time to dissolve its decree. It has been found upon nine fair ballots that its nominee cannot be elected. It is time to start anew. But there is another consideration. Mr. Mitchell has abandoned the hope of being elected by republican votes and now seeks success at the hands of democrats. Do the strict party men who went into caucus upon the plea of party usage want a republican senator who owes his election to democratic votes? Is party spirit to be outraged by the champions of party usage, and will republicans submit to it? We believe not.

MICHIGAN'S LIQUOR LAW.

Michigan for many years made various attempts to curb the liquor trade, all of which proved inefficient and unsatisfactory, until last year what is called the iron-clad liquor law was passed, taxing retail spirit dealers $300, wholesale $500, and dealers in brewed and fermented liquors $200. This law also provides that if a dealer fails to pay his tax he shall be fined $100 and sent to jail from ten to ninety days. The law also prohibits the playing of pool, billiards, cards and dice in the same or adjoining room to the bar, and saloons must be kept closed on Sundays, election days and legal holidays, and not opened till seven o'clock on next succeeding morning. In a financial point of view this law has been very successful, the tax in some towns being sufficient to pay all the town expenses. It has also reduced the number of saloons, notwithstanding the rapid growth of cities and great increase of population. In 1875, 4600 saloons paid $437,705 taxes; in 1881, 3953 saloons paid $536,128 taxes. Here are actual fruits of high license. The result shows the soundness of the principle of taxing the liquor trade "all the traffic will bear." Where prohibition cannot be enforced high license can be, and it becomes at once a financial and restrictive measure.

The Utah commissioners are publishing in the Salt Lake Tribune a revised list of registered voters of the territory. Every one is excluded who does not take an oath that he or she is not living in polygamous relations. Women vote in Utah. Under the new act the names of about 10,000 Mormons have been erased from the poll lists. It is feared the Mormons will still have a majority, though every effort will be made to get out the whole "Gentile" vote, a large part of which has neglected hitherto to go to the polls, for the reason that there was clearly no use to do so. The voting population of Utah has hitherto been reckoned at about 21,000. Disfranchisement of 10,000 Mormons would still leave a Mormon majority of about 2000 over the highest "Gentile" vote heretofore cast. But the "Gentile" ladies, who have hitherto refrained from voting, are now taking an active interest, and will be a strong reinforcement at the polls.

Mitchell is the candidate of those who care nothing about politics except to get office and to keep it. It is this class who are pushing him with a desperate energy. Hence, all such men as Ben Simpson, B. B. Tuttle, John Kelly, L. Besser, Bill Sweeney, W. B. Daniels and the whole legion of their "professional" associates are "working" for Mitchell with might and main. The whole crowd is at Salem, where they have no proper business, seeking their own selfish ends, which, it is needless to say, are not indispensable either to the public welfare or the future harmony of the republican party.

It is touching indeed to see such gentlemen as Vic. Trevitt, L. F. Lane, W. H. Watkinds, Jim Hendershott, Bill Cosper, and a host more, taking so deep an interest at Salem in the affairs of the republican party. These estimable democrats are for Mitchell, of course. They form his democratic lobby, and are expected "to steer democratic votes into the Mitchell fold. No wonder many republican members are restive under this sort of "co-operation."

In his address before the rump caucus the other night Mitchell said, in substance, that he would hold in everlasting detestation those whom his candidacy had forced to publish the history of his life and character; they might print what they would, but for his part he would forever hold his peace about his many and revolting crimes. Good idea. He has found by experience that any attempt at "explanation" only makes matters worse.

By the larger part of the republicans of New York the renomination of Gov. Cornell was desired. But the whole weight of the national administration was thrown in favor of Folger, secretary of the treasury, who was thereby enabled to carry the convention by a bare majority against Cornell. This interference will be resented, and Folger will be defeated. Everywhere the republican party is resolved not to submit to boss rule.

A letter from Douglas county says: "The little Roseburg paper would like to make it appear that we are so demoralized in Douglass that we would vote for Brigham Young's oldest son, if his name was Hipple-Mitchell. We are not that sort. To many of us the facts of Mitchell's life were not known, and the ring managers got an advantage by deceiving the people last spring in regard to candidates."

One of the democrats voting for Mitchell has heard from his constituents. It is Long of Lane county. He is declared by a public meeting at Eugene City to have disgraced himself, misrepresented his constituents, betrayed his trust, and brought reproach on his party. His resignation is therefore demanded by the democrats of Lane county. Do you hear, John Long?

Washington is among the strongest anti-Mitchell and anti-boss counties in the state. Not one man in ten could be induced to support Mitchell for any office under any circumstances; and yet Washington county is misrepresented by men who are casting its vote for Mitchell, to the deep indignation of citizens without distinction of party.

Ten years ago Mitchell was at Salem declaring that the republican party would be ruined and lost if the democrats were allowed to participate in the election of a senator. Now he is again at Salem founding all his hopes on the obtainment of democrats to elect him, and resorting to every possible means to get them.

PLAIN TALK FROM LANE COUNTY.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

EUGENE CITY, Or., Sept. 25.—At a public meeting held by democrats here to-night, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, John Long was nominated by the democratic convention of Lane county in April, as a democrat, and

WHEREAS, Said John Long was elected as a democrat to the legislative assembly by democrats at the June election; and

WHEREAS, The said John Long, contrary to the usages of the party and contrary to the will of the democrats of Lane county, voted for J. H. Mitchell, a republican, for senator, and

WHEREAS, At the time said John Long voted for said Mitchell, there was nominated by the democratic members of said legislative assembly, a democratic candidate for senator,

Resolved, That we, the democrats of Lane county, in mass meeting assembled, hereby denounce the act of said John Long, in voting for said Mitchell, as contrary to the will of his constituents, and

Resolved, That we hereby arraign him for having betrayed the confidence reposed in him by the democracy of this county, and

Resolved, That we hereby request the said John Long to resign his seat as a member of said legislative assembly.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

SALEM, Monday Afternoon.

The senatorial question is still a most perplexing one. The only material change in the ballot to-day was that of Dunbar, independent, of Washington county, to Mitchell, which increased his vote to forty-one, five short of election. It was announced upon authority of "the boss himself," that on the first ballot he would gain one vote, and on the second, three. At the conclusion of the first ballot motion to vote again was made, supported by the Mitchell people, of course, and opposed by the opposition and democrats. On an aye and nay call the vote stood 44 to 47 in favor of another call as before. The three promised votes failed to respond, much to the discomfort of the Mitchell people, who, seeing their mistake, voted for adjournment. It is now evident that Mitchell's bluff game is being played on friends and foes alike. He assures his strikers each morning that his election is certain "on next ballot," hoping by their enthusiasm to "make the riffle." Strikers have the hopes of the lobby been upset that they are losing faith. Several of the thirty-six are of the opinion that the effort to force Mitchell on the people has gone far enough. I do not think his republican front will stand unbroken for more than another ballot, and independence may be asserted before it is taken. Men who are held to his support on party grounds are protesting on party grounds against alliance with black sheep from the democratic fold.

Siglin's explanation to the house will not alter public opinion. It is generally believed that himself, Curtis, Long and Stiers were bought. Siglin's talk does not tally with his conduct of late. If he had gone before the last democratic caucus, held two days ago, and stated his case, his showing would now be better. But he staid out of that caucus under pretense of illness. His story is not believed by the leading men of either party. Condemnation of these men is general and people do not show much delicacy in expressing their views. It is not possible to explain Dunbar's change excepting on the ground of improper inference. He has all along been opposed to Mitchell, and the sentiment of the people of his district are against bossism and its exponents almost to a man.

By telegraph, 10 P. M.—The democratic members met informally this evening, about twenty-five being present, but did not change their plan of action. Situation remains unchanged.

HALF A BLOCK BURNED.

The Old Wooden Buildings South of the Clarendon Hotel Totally Destroyed—Loss, $20,000.

A few minutes after [illegible] o'clock yesterday morning, Mrs. Chas. Russell, a guest at the Clarendon hotel, was awakened by a bright light streaming through her window, and looking out of bed saw the rear of a building on the adjoining block in flames, which were fast spreading. She gave the alarm by cries of fire from the window, which cries were taken up by persons on the street and William McDonnell, the ever-watchful watchman at New Market theater, turned in box 15. Peter Wisdom, night watchman at the Clarendon, also turned in an alarm from box 16, which caused some confusion in the correct striking of the bell.

Owing to a slight breeze the flames made great headway among the old wooden buildings before the fire department arrived.

On the corner of E and First street was a wooden building in process of erection, which was saved from the flames. The rooms of the old Eagle hotel, which suffered some little damage, were also untouched; the rest of the block was destroyed. There were two saloons, a restaurant, a lodging house, and two cigar and fruit stores in the burned buildings, which were owned by D. F. Harrington, Capt. W. J. Buchanan and Woodard & Smith.

The fire is supposed to have originated in the kitchen of Mrs. Nora Carroll, 80 North First street, and from there it spread through the flues to the lodging house of Mrs. Ellen O'Neill. She was awakened by the heat about the same time the [illegible], and aroused her lodgers, just in time to escape with their lives, without, however, being able to save any property. Many were unable to save their outside clothing. [illegible], narrowly escaped being [illegible]. He was badly blistered and his hair and whiskers singed off.

So dry were the buildings and so much inflammable material were contained in them that it took a long time to subdue the flames. All the occupants were insured to nearly the full extent of the stock, and the owners of the buildings were also insured except Mr. D. F. Harrington, whose policy lapsed a short time ago, and which had not been renewed by his attorneys, Ladd & Tilton, under his instructions. Following are the losses:

D. F. Harrington, two three frame houses on the corner of First and E streets, loss, $8000; no insurance.

Capt. W. J. Buchanan, No. 89 N. First street, frame building; loss, $3000; insured in the Phœnix and Home companies for $1500.

Woodard & Smith, frame building, Nos. 85 and 87; partially destroyed; loss $2000; fully insured.

Thomas Watson, IXL saloon, loss, $2500; insured in the Hamburg & Bremen company for $1000, and in Buchanan's agency for $1000.

Paddy Martin, saloon; loss $1000; insured. Martin also lost a valuable imported dog.

John Burns, saloon; loss $600; insured.

M. Purcell, saloon; loss $700; insured in the Hamburg and Bremen Co. for $350.

Keegan Bros., saloon; loss $250, insured in the same company.

W. Mordaunt, restaurant; loss $1000; insured.

Mrs. Ellen O'Neill, lodging house; loss $1000; insured for $500.

Mrs. Nora Carroll, fruit and cigar store; loss $1800; insured in Bathman Bro.'s agency for $1250.

T. H. Barrett, fruit and cigar store; loss $1500; insured for $1200.

Mr. Mordaunt, the restaurant keeper, also lost a valuable gold watch and $160 in coin.

About 10 o'clock in the morning the smouldering ruins again burst into a blaze. No. Two's engine, manned by members of Two's and Three's went down and extinguished the flames.

A REMOTE METROPOLIS.

The Rich City of the Pacific Northwest.

Portland, Or., Its Situation, Construction, Prosperity, People and Climate—The Conditions which have Caused its Growth and Assure its Future.

Correspondence of the New York Tribune.

PORTLAND, Or., July 18.—A city of 27,000 inhabitants does not count for much in the east. Such a place usually lives on a few manufacturing establishments and the trade of a single populous county. But on the Pacific coast a town of that size is a genuine metropolis, controlling the commerce of a vast region and furnishing a focal point for the forces of enterprise, capital and intelligence.

The last census gave Portland a population of only 17,500, and ranked it a little below Newburg, N. Y., Altoona, Penn., Meriden, Conn., and Zanesville, Ohio, and a little above such towns as Binghamton, New Brunswick and Bangor. The local estimate of the present population is 35,000, and, like all local estimates, makes a liberal allowance for growth since the census-taker finished his work. To be within the mark, let us say that there are 27,000 people (22,000 whites and 5,000 Chinamen) on this little shore between the fir forest and the green flood of the Willamette river, and on the larger plateau across the stream. The town with its suburb of East Portland, would only make a New York suburb like Orange or Yonkers. Yet it handles ten million bushels of wheat every year, controls transportation lines which drain a region more than five hundred miles square, sends ships all over the world, and sells goods to the people of an entire state and a territory soon to become a state. With so great a trade in the hands of comparatively few people, the profits all pouring into a single town, Portland has grown very rich; indeed it is said to have more wealth per capita of population than any other city in the United States except New Haven, a surprising fact when its brief thirty years of existence are contrasted with the two centuries of the New England towns. Observe, too, that the property of the Oregon metropolis has not come from mines of the precious metals, for the mines of the country tributary to it are few and of small account, but is almost wholly the result of trade and transportation, based on the products of labor in fields and forests and in the salmon fisheries. Wheat first, then lumber, then the salmon catch, form the foundation of Portland's remarkable prosperity.

Being rich, the people of Portland build solid, handsome business blocks of brick and iron, plant spacious dwellings in the midst of flowers and trees on heights looking across town, river and forests to Mount Hood's huge pyramid of snow and rock, and the dazzling white sugar loaf of Mount St. Helen's. They have schoolhouses that rank with the biggest and best in eastern cities, stores as large and as well stocked as those of Boston, a public library, comfortable club house, miles of maple shaded streets bordered by pretty lawns, churches without number, a daily journal that prints a whole folio page of telegraphic news—almost everything, in short, appertaining to a long settled and luxurious civilization except a good hotel. Remember that this is a region wholly isolated from rail communication with the east, and reached quickest by a three days' ocean voyage from San Francisco. Next year New York and Portland will be united by the completion of the Northern Pacific road, but all that one now sees here of eastern comfort, intelligence, industry and taste has been lifted over the obstacles of wide continental spaces and six hundred miles of sea, and thus transplanted has flourished in spite of distance and isolation. The railroads now operated in Oregon and Washington end at the mountain barriers on the east and the south.

The Portlanders take life comfortably. They are not eager and active like the people of new western towns on the Atlantic slope. They do not always seem to be in a breathless chase after the mighty dollar. They saunter along the streets, open the stores late and close early, do business in an easy-going live-and-let-live way, like to run down to San Francisco to see a bigger world than their own, are much given to picnics, excursions and little home sociables, pay a good deal of attention to church matters, read the eastern magazines and weekly papers, talk national politics as readily as an Ohio man, dress well, and are fond of good cheer. The tone of society is much more discreet and sober and less vivacious, I am told, than in San Francisco, and comes pretty well up to the standard of small eastern cities. To the tourist the city has two permanent charms—the view of the eternal snows on Hood and St. Helens, and on the farther peaks of Rainier and Adams, glowing in the full noonday light, or blushing at dawn or sunset, or gleaming faint and ghost-like between wrappings of cloud and the dark fragrant fir forests close at hand, through which one can gallop over good roads along the brink of Alpine gorges. Then there are pleasant sails on well-appointed steamboats down the Willamette and up the broad Columbia to the Cascades and The Dalles, or down to Astoria, which sits on piles by the water side, and lives on salmon and sailors. All is forest and mountain on the Columbia save a bit of a farm at long intervals half drowned by the freshet at this season of melting snows in the Cascades and Rockies, and a few lonesome, discouraged villages that once hoped to surpass Portland but years ago gave up the pleasing delusion. But one has only to go southward by rail up either side of the Willamette valley to see a well settled region of broad wheat fields, meadows, and orchards, basking in agricultural prosperity and dotted with pretty little towns. The whole broad continent contains no finer or more fertile valley than this. Where else, indeed, can fields be found which have produced wheat for thirty successive years and still yield at least thirty bushels to the acre at every harvest?

The people of the interior do not like Portland. They think it has grown rich at their expense. They will tell you that it is badly located; that the metropolis of the Columbia basin ought to be nearer the sea, or at least on the Columbia river, instead of fourteen miles up one of its tributaries and 110 from the ocean. They say it is as if New York were built on the Mohawk, supposing that stream and the Hudson to be navigable for large ships. Some say that the big city of the Pacific Northwest should be on Puget Sound; others at Astoria; others at the head of navigation on the Columbia. Meanwhile Portland continues to grow in spite of all argument and prophecies. It got its start from the fact that it stands at the point where sea-going vessels got nearest to the wheat fields of the Willamette valley when that valley grew all the products Oregon had to sell to the rest of the world. Having got the start and the wealth to control trade, Portland is not likely to lose her commercial supremacy. In spite of overflows and summer malaria, of sand-banks in the rivers at low water and the growing disposition of the Columbia bar to impede navigation, the only seaport city north of San Francisco has grown up at this place and seems in no danger of being disturbed by future rivals.

The Columbia bar, by the way, calls for the speedy adoption of some plan for its permanent improvement. All the government is doing is to keep a channel open across it is to stir up the sand with a drag, so that the current can act upon it. A heavy sum of money, likely to amount in the aggregate to nearly two millions, is being dribbled out year after year to make a canal with locks around the Cascade rapids, 150 miles from the mouth of the river, which when finished will only add fifty miles of additional navigation to the more serious obstacle of the Dalles. Meanwhile the mouth of the river is obstructed by a shifting, dangerous bar, dreaded by all sea captains, and completely shutting out the largest class of steamships. The government engineer officers believe it possible to open and keep open a channel across the bar by building a jetty out from one shore so as to narrow the mouth of the river, now six miles wide, down to two or three, and thus accelerate the current. The work would be expensive, but would not cost half as much as the Eads jetties at the mouth of the Mississippi. Next to the Mississippi, the Columbia is the longest river in the United States flowing directly to the sea, and drains the greatest expanse of country. It seems folly to spend money cutting a canal around a rapid far up its course while the sand is blocking up its mouth. The commerce of Portland thrives in spite of the bar, but the steamers which run to San Francisco and perform nearly all the freight and passenger traffic between Oregon and the rest of the world sometimes find it prudent to wait a day or two when a heavy sea is running on the big broad sand dam before attempting to cross it, and once or twice a year a heavily laden grain ship is lost by pounding on the hard bottom. Portland merchants fear that the difficult entrance to the Columbia and the oppressive charges of a combined towing and pilotage monopoly, if not remedied, may divert the grain-shipping business to the deep, wide and perfectly safe estuary of Puget Sound, when a through railroad connection is completed next year between the Oregon and Washington wheat fields and the Sound ports.

Last year 134 sailing vessels took cargoes of wheat and flour out of Portland, and all but one went to Liverpool, Queenstown or Falmouth. Thus it will be seen that the entire export trade of this little metropolis of the Pacific northwest is with Great Britain direct. So profitable is wheat carrying that ships can afford to come here in ballast for the sake of return cargoes to Europe. They bring some pig iron, railway iron, salt and tin, but not one ship in a dozen which enters the Columbia from a foreign port has any cargo at all. If abuse of the American tariff had any weight, however, they would all come well laden, for the English captains do a frightful amount of swearing at our protective system which excludes the cheap British wares they would be glad to bring over for a trifling freight charge. The ordinary rate on wheat from Portland to Liverpool is from 55 to 60 shillings per ton—not far from 40 cents per bushel. The bushel measure is not used on this coast for grain, the price being always so much per cental—twenty centals making a ton. The cheapness of sea transportation is well illustrated by the fact that the price of wheat in Portland is about the same as in Fargo, the chief mart of the Dakota wheat fields, although the Oregon grain travels over 10,000 miles further to reach Liverpool than that raised in Dakota. The farmer in the Willamette valley is practically as well situated for getting his staple product to the market, which fixes its price, as the farmer of the wheat region west of the Mississippi, an important fact which explains the prosperity of Oregon and is stimulating the rapid settlement of the newer wheat regions in eastern Washington.

Not much manufacturing is done here. There are foundries and machine shops which make steamboat and stationary engines, a stove foundry, a few [illegible] using eastern material, a wagon and carriage shops, a number of furniture factories, making cheap articles from the native soft wood—there is no good hard wood in this region—a shoe factory, a buckskin glove factory and a few minor industries of small account. It is evident that a great expansion of manufacturing enterprises must soon follow the rapid increase of population on the coast, and the steady development of the coal fields. The best opening in any particular line would seem to be for the establishment of extensive iron works to make bar iron, rails, nails, car wheels, bridges and general railway supplies. Nothing in this way has been attempted yet. Only one furnace exists in Oregon, a small charcoal stack at Oswego, on the Willamette, which works up the native hematite ore found close by. There is one furnace in Washington territory, on Puget sound, now being rebuilt, which is advantageously situated for getting ore, coal and limestone, but is thus far not out of the experimental stage.

In speaking of the climate here in Oregon one treads on delicate ground. The people do not like to hear anything said about their winter fogs and rains, and it is hard for a stranger coming here in the lovely summer season to get the truth from them about the weather from October to April. I suppose the long and short of the matter is that six months of the year are delightful, two tolerable, and four detestable. The summers are perfect. Rarely is the heat oppressive, and during the few days when the mercury goes up to 90 degrees, there is no discomfort felt indoors or in the shade, and a cool, breezy night is sure to follow. You begin your sleep with one blanket and pull up a second before daybreak. Most of the summer the weather is delightful for walking and riding. People wear moderately thick woolen clothes and flannel undergarments the year round. In winter [illegible] degrees above [illegible] is thought an exceedingly cold temperature. [illegible] is not below [illegible] degrees, [illegible] from freezing [illegible] degrees. There is not much snow [illegible] by the warm [illegible] a great deal of rain in the [illegible] the weather from late October to March in all the region west of the [illegible] the forty-first parallel [illegible] Vancouver's Island. The inhabitants will assure you that they prefer this sort of a winter to the sharp cold of the east. Perhaps they do, at all events they seem to thrive in their peculiar climate. They look healthy and robust. It may be that the moisture which produces the enormous fir forests and develops the elder bush of our eastern pastures into a tree big enough to shade a house, and the little fern into a six-foot bush, is beneficial to the human plant.

CRICKET MATCH.

The return match between the Portland First Eleven and Sixteen Tars from the shipping on the river, took place on the East Portland grounds on Saturday. Portland having won the toss elected to go to the wicket, Kinross and Warren handling the willow, facing Fenton and Chever's bowling. Fenton's first ball was cut for one by Kinross, Warren following suit for a single. Then Kinross cut Fenton for 2 and 4 from successive balls, the inning opening auspiciously for Portland, although it was difficult to get the ball safely through such a large field. Chevers bowled Kinross in his fourth over, the first wicket falling for 24. Then Rome joined Warren, who was bowled almost immediately for a neat 16—two wickets for 26. Bourne succeeded Warren, and ere he retired the score was increased to 48, mostly contributed by Rome. Creighton had a short life, falling a victim to Chever's underhand, three for 51. Gilman followed, and with Andrew run up the score quite rapidly, Molson, Stewart, Bentjen and Ogilbie each contributing a few, and with but two byes as extras the inning closed for 106, quite a respectable score against so large a field. The sailors commenced by sending Kennedy and Murry in against Bourne and Kinross, the latter from the southerly end. Cook and Capt. Milne were the only batsmen who made any stand, getting 19 and 21 respectively. The fielding of the Portland club was wretched indeed, the extras numbering 28 as against 2 for the nautical cricketers. Portland again went to the bat, and had six wickets down for 120, Rome, Warren and Kinross again getting double figures. Thus the game ended in a draw very much in favor of Portland.

Gentlemen in need of a handsome dress or business suit made to order will do well to call on Friedlander & Co., 214 First st., before purchasing elsewhere. Send for samples and rules for self-measurement.

Speaking of photographs, when you want the genuine article, consult Abell, the peoples' photographer. For samples, see his display, which cannot be excelled anywhere.

The reason White & Haines, merchant tailors, 203 First st, do such good work at such low rates is that they do all their own work. Neither do they send out any work to Chinamen. This is commendable and our citizens should patronize accordingly.

Dr. Culbertson, the oculist and aurist, will go to The Dalles Tuesday and return Friday, to remain at the St. Charles until Tuesday, Oct. 3d. The afflicted in his specialty of the eye and ear, who have not already consulted him should bear these dates in mind.

THE MECHANICS' FAIR.

Increasing Attendance of Visitors—Everything Running Smoothly and Exhibits all Filled—Some Noteworthy things to be Seen.

The crowd of people who visited the pavilion of the Mechanic's Fair last evening, was larger than at any other time since the opening, except on Saturday night. The partial confusion which was at first noticed among many exhibits, has all been straightened out and everything is now in first class order. The musical entertainment given by the 21st Infantry band, still continues to be an attractive feature. Following is the programme which will be given under the leadership of Prof. Oechsle to-night:

PART I.

1. March, "Hand in Hand"	Lurath
2. Overture, "Franz Schubert"	Suppe
3. Waltz, "News from Vienna"	Strauss
4. Song, "The Sands O'Dee"	Clay
Solo for Cornet	Prof. M. W. Thompson
5. Menuetto	Schubert

PART II.

1. Selection, "The Pirates of Penzance"	Sullivan
2. Quadrille, "Fatinitza"	Suppe
3. Norwegian National Song	[illegible]
4. Schottisch, "Kentucky Jubilee Singers"	Harper
5. Galop, "Bessie"	Haeusser

Noticeable Exhibits.

MRS. PILGER'S DISPLAY

Is attracting great attention and is admired by every one who enters the pavilion. It is very elegant and possesses great attractions to the ladies. A detailed description of the various dresses, cloaks, dress goods, silks, etc., will soon appear in these columns.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE COMPANY.

Make a very fine display and in some future issue we will explain to the public the advantages this machine has over others.

A. [illegible] & CO.

We will soon have a description of the fine display of this popular crockery firm.

PLEASURE BOATS.

Mr. W. Ingate Ball, the boat builder, has on exhibit a very neat one, boat of which we will have something to say in a day or two.

PIANOS.

Mr. Sinsheimer's display of pianos is attracting great attention and will receive further notice in a few days.

CONCRETE PIPE.

This pipe, which is adapted for subirrigation under drainage, and for conducting water and also for sewerage, is on exhibition in the main hall of the pavilion near the center of the north side. It is exhibited by Messrs. O'Flaherty & Blair, of Vancouver, the owners of the patent for Multnomah, Clackamas and Clarke counties. The pipe is manufactured from cement and sand, and is the cheapest and most durable pipe for all purposes. It is not effected by the variations of climate, and will not rust or break. It can be easily put down, and will last for all time. Several cities in California have adopted this pipe for sewerage purposes, and it is found to be the cheapest and most durable ever used. Los Angeles is sewered with this pipe, and property owners there are loud in its praise. They say Los Angeles is the cheapest sewered city on the coast. Portland could be sewered with this pipe at about half the cost of the present system. Why is it that the property owners, tax payers and others do not look into this? It can be made continuous or sectional as desired and any size wanted. We deem this pipe one of the most important features of the fair.

All candles sold at Mechanics' fair at same price as at Postoffice Candy Candy Store, opp. Postoffice.

THIRD READING OF BILLS.

H. B. 10, Webb—Regulating marking of domestic animals on the ear; passed.

House adjourned.

There were several committee meetings after adjournment, but nothing of importance was done.

The Senatorial Ballots.

The joint convention met at noon, President McConnell in the chair.

Siglin, of Coos, rose to a question of personal privilege. He said that his motives in voting for John H. Mitchell having been called into question by reporters who have been granted the privilege of the house, who had so far forgotten themselves as to charge him with crime, he deemed an explanation necessary. In casting his vote thus, he said, he wanted it understood that he intended from the first to vote for Mitchell should the emergency arise. His constituents sent him to the senate to vote for and assist with all his power in the election of a democrat to the United States senate. If it were not possible to elect a democrat, then his constituency wanted him to vote for John H. Mitchell. He had expressed publicly his intention to follow out their wishes in this matter, had even announced his intention to do so in his paper. The opponents of John H. Mitchell had the power to elect a democrat. Let them name any honorable democrat for that position and he promised them the votes of the entire democratic representation in this body. He owed Mitchell nothing but good feeling.

Here Mr. Siglin launched off into an apotheosis of Mitchell, and was called to order by the chair. He started off on the same tack and was called to order by Gilbert, the chair deciding the point well taken, after which Siglin subsided.

THE BALLOT

Resulted: Mitchell 41, Prim 29, W. Carey Johnson 16, Failing 1, Hare 1, Shattuck 1. Mitchell's vote was Saturday's last ballot with the addition of Dunbar, independent, of Washington county.

Wright, of Union, moved to adjourn, lost, ayes 43, nays 47, the Mitchell men and six democrats voting in the negative.

The second ballot resulted as the first, except Bruce, independent, of Washington, changed from Prim to B [illegible].

On motion of Myers of Clackamas, the convention adjourned till to-morrow at noon.

Wales' Boys

The sons of the Prince of Wales have arrived at home in the corvette Bacchante, in which they have made a cruise around the world. The eldest of these two youths, Prince Albert Victor, who stands next to the Prince of Wales himself in the line of succession to the throne, was born at Frogmore on January 8, 1864, and is now in his nineteenth year. He is a slender youth, straight as an arrow, with fair complexion, fine features and blue eyes. He carries himself well and converses easily. When not talking his face wears a grave and reserved expression, befitting one destined for the exalted position to which he will in the course of time be called. The younger of the two, Prince George, was born on June 3, 1865, and is now in his eighteenth year. He is not so tall and slender as his brother, but has a rounder face, full lips that easily curve into smiles, and a very pleasant expression. In June, 1877, the young princes were examined at the Royal Naval college at Greenwich, precisely in the same manner as ordinary candidates for naval cadetships. Both princes passed a very satisfactory examination, and in some subjects exhibited a more than usual degree of proficiency. Two years later it was determined to give the youths a chance to pick up the practical points of the naval profession, and at the same time to see something of the world. For two years they had passed most of their time on board the training ship Britannia at Dartmouth, and the Admiralty regulations make that period the limit of such service for naval cadets. They both passed first class in seamanship and conduct, thereby gaining a month's time, which entitled them to become midshipmen. The vessel selected for their long cruise was the Bacchante, a fine iron corvet, cased with wood. The vessel was doubly manned with superior officers, to furnish the young princes with the best instruction possible. On July 24, 1879, they bade farewell to the Britannia, and on September 25th set sail from Portland on the Bacchante for Port Mahon, in the island of Majorca. The young princes were treated throughout the cruise as ordinary midshipmen, taking the regular round of duties, messing with their comrades and being distinguished only by having separate sleeping accomodations, with an eye doubtless to the risk of being "cut down" in their sleep after the fashion commemorated by Captain Marryat. Special allowances were made to the Captain and the ward room and gunroom messes for "such expenditures as may be directly consequent upon entertaining guests who may visit the ship on account of her having the princes on board." The princes' cabin was that which, had the ship been a flag ship, would have been devoted to the use of the Admiral's secretary, and connected with that of their tutor, the Rev. John Neale Dalton. The only ornaments were portraits, with autographs, of their parents, of their grandmother, the queen, and of their aunt, the Princess Beatrice, and the furniture consisted of two swinging cots supported by stanchions, and two seachests with regulation outfits—"one great coat, vest and trousers," "one Bible, one prayer book," "one set of blacking brushes," and "one scrubbing brush." The Bacchante's wardroom and gunroom, thanks to the Princess of Wales, were made quite gay with a series of portraits and lithographs after Birket Foster, and a "baker organ-harmonium," while the quarters of Sir Charles Scott, the commander of the vessel, were very highly embellished, conspicuous among the decorations being groups of Bacchantes from casts in the British museum, mounted in blue velvet frames and affixed to velvet backgrounds. The Bacchante cruised for a while in the Mediterranean and then took in Teneriffe, Barbados, the West India islands, and the Bermudas, arriving at the last named islands in March, 1880. At this stage the young Princes were formerly promoted to the rank of midshipmen, with a consequent increase of pay from one shilling to one shilling and ninepence per day. From Bermuda the Bacchante returned to England, whence she again sailed for the voyage around the world. The vessel sailed by way of Vigo and Madeira to Rio, then around by Montevideo to Valparaiso and San Francisco, through the Straits of Magellan; then by Vancouver's Island to Australia, China and Japan. At Singapore the Bacchante started for England, coming through the Suez canal. At every point touched by the Bacchante, whether colonial or foreign, the young Princes were received with demonstrations of welcome, and in Japan especially they were entertained in princely fashion. As to their future, the younger, Prince George, is to adopt the naval service as a profession, thus following the precedent established by his uncle, the Duke of Edinburg, the Queen's second son. The elder, Prince Albert Victor, is to follow in his father's footsteps by adopting the military profession, and he will soon enter the Woolwich Academy as a cadet.

The Dying Year.

There can be nothing sadder than the solemn hush of nature that precedes the death of the year. The golden glory of autumn, with the billowy bronze and velvet azure of the skies above the royal robes of oak and maple bespeak the closing hours of nature teeming life and the silent farewell to humanity's gauze underwear. Thus while nature dons her regal robes of scarlet and gold in honor of the farewell benefit to autumn, the sad-eyed poet steals swiftly away to the neighboring clothes line and in honor of nature's great blow out, dons the flaming flannels of his friend out of respect to the hectic flush of the dying year. Leaves have their time to fall, and so has the price of coal; and yet how sadly at variance with decaying nature is the robust coal market. Another glorious summer with its wealth of pleasant memories is stored away among the archives of our history. Another gloomy winter is upon us. These wonderful colors that flame across the sky of Indian summer like the gory banner of a royal conqueror, come but to warn us that in a few short weeks the water pipe will be busted in the kitchen and the decorated bowl will be broken. We flit through the dreary hours of summer like swift-winged bumble-bees amid the honeysuckle and pumpkin blossoms, storing away perhaps a little glucose honey and buckwheat pancakes for the future, but all at once, like a newspaper thief in the night, the king of frost and soft, mellow chilblains is upon us, and we crouch beneath the wintry blast and hump our spinal column up into the crisp air like a Texas steer that has thoughtlessly swallowed a raw cactus. Life is one continued round of alternate joys and sorrows. To-day we are on top of the surging wave of prosperity and warming ourselves in the glad sunlight of plenty, and to-morrow we are cast down and depressed financially, and have to stand off the washerwoman for our clean shirt, or stay at home from the opera. Oh, time! thou bald-headed pelican with the venerable corn cutter and the second hand hour glass, thou playeth strange pranks with the children of men. The chubby boy whose danger signal hangs sadly through the lattice work of his pants, knows that time, who waits for no man, will one day, if he struggles heroically on, give him knowledge and suspenders, and a solid girl, and experience and soft, white mustache, and eventually a low grave in the valley beneath the sighing elms and the weeping willow, where in the misty twilight of the year noiselessly upon his breast shall fall the dead leaf, while the silent leaf of the gray autumnal sky will come and sink into the yellow grass above his head.—[Boomerang.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

Grape Jam.—The common wild grape is best for this. Boil soft, and strain the grapes through a seive—a pound of sugar to a pound of pulp. Boil it twenty minutes, stirring often.

Peach Fritters.—A batter of eight eggs, eight tablespoonfuls of flour, and a quart of milk. Have ready in a frying-pan some nice butter, hot. To every tablespoonful of the batter add half a peach, and fry, draining each through a skimmer as you take it up. Serve with sugar.

Peach Butter.—Pare ripe peaches and put them in a preserving kettle, with sufficient water to boil them soft; then sift through a colander, removing the stones. To each quart of peaches put one and one-half pounds of sugar, and boil very slowly one hour. Stir often, and do not let them burn. Put in stone or glass jars and keep in a cool place.

Quince Jelly.—Take clean nice parings and seeds. Put them in your porcelain kettle, cover with water and cook until very soft, drain through a flannel bag (without squeezing), boil the juice from twenty minutes to three-quarters of an hour; you cannot tell when it is boiled enough unless you cool a little of the juice; do not put sugar in until the juice begins to be thick; skim off all the froth that rises, for on this depends the purity of the jelly.

Quince and Apple Preserve.—Have one-third weight of sweet apples pared, cored and quartered; equal weight of sugar and fruit. When the quince is boiled tender take it out, boil the apple in the quince water, put them into the syrup and let them boil until they look red and clear; an hour and a half is not too long. Do not boil the quinces in the syrup, but put layers of the apple, when done, into jars, with the quince, previously choked tender in water, and pour the syrup over them.

Fried Steak and Onions.—Melt a lump of butter in a frying pan; cover the bottom of the pan with onions sliced very thin; then lay the steak over them; when the onions are fried until they are tender put the beef on the bottom of the pan and cover it with the onions; add butter or lard as you need it. Liver cooked in this way is nice also. When it is done lay it on a platter and heap the onions on the meat. A very little gravy made in the pan in which you have cooked the meat is an addition, but make only a little and turn over the meat, seasoning it well with salt and pepper.

An Arab Custom.

At the close of one of the great religious festivals of the Moslem war a number of Arabs are seen to detach themselves from the crowd and to lie down side by side in the dust, face-downward, like logs upon a "corduroy" road, while their friends, crowding around them, press down an arm here and there, in order to make this living pavement as compact as possible. When all is ready the crowd falls back, while a horseman coming up from behind passes at a quick walk over the prostrate bodies. This is called the Dosch, or "trampling." Each man receives the full pressure of the iron-shod hoof in the small of his back, and not a few may be seen to writhe under it like trodden worms. The moment this horrible pageant is over the friends and relatives of the trampled men rush up to them and do their utmost to make it appear that they have received no injury from the pressure. The odious farce, however, is always unsuccessful, the groans and writhings of the sufferers being sufficient evidence to the contrary. The whole spectacle is revolting in the extreme, and deserves attention as a striking proof of the lengths to which superstition and fanaticism can go, even in an age of highly developed civilization.

A Husband's Christmas Present.

A gentleman sauntered into a large dry-goods store in the city of L—— a few days before Christmas, and remarked casually to the attentive clerk:

"I want something for a Christmas present for my wife. What have you got?"

The clerk suggested various things, but the customer seemed not quite satisfied.

At last he asked, "Have you cotton cloth?"

"Certainly, sir."

"I need some new shirts. How much cloth does it take for a shirt?"

"About four yards."

"Well, let's see. I want eight new shirts. Eight times four are thirty-two. I'll take thirty-two yards."

The gratitude of the wife at receiving as a Christmas present the cloth for eight new shirts for her husband can be better imagined than described.—[Harper's Magazine for October.

The Wounded Veteran.

The average Washington claim agent is not a man to be disturbed by any scruples of conscience:

"You say you were wounded during the late war?"

"That's what I said," returned the applicant.

"Do you remember in what year it was?"

"In 1864, I think."

"Where was you wounded?"

"In the wrist."

"Was it a minnie ball?"

"Not exactly. Her name was Minnie, but it was a corset bone that wounded me."

"All right," exclaimed the agent, "we'll call it a bayonet stab."

To-day the corset scarred veteran is occupying a lucrative place on Uncle Sam's pension roll.

Sellwood.

A Beautiful Suburban Town on the East Shore of the Willamette.

The Best Opportunity of the Time for a Home.

The streets and avenues of this beautiful site are being rapidly cleared, and lots and blocks are now ready for sale.

Its Advantages to Residents

Are rapid and direct ferry communication with the city, almost level and easily cleared ground, good soil, and the best facility for furnishing pure water.

The Steam Ferry

Which the Company guarantees for two years, will be a pleasant ride of twenty minutes, and you where you can buy a lot for one-tenth the sum asked for one in twenty minutes' walk from the business center of Portland, and in the spring, when the large and swift steamer for which the Company is negotiating is put on, the trip will be reduced to fifteen minutes each way, at the nominal fare of five cents.

Other Means of Access.

No other site near Portland has been improved so lavishly by its proprietors as Sellwood, for the convenience of purchasers and residents. Streets have been opened and cleared and a plank road from the river to the railroad station at Willsburg is projected and grading and planking of part of it has been ordered this year, connecting by a ferry soon to be put on with Fulton and the macadam road. This road will also cross the East Portland and Oregon City road, so that means of access by railroads, steamer and wagon roads will be unequaled.

Pure Spring Water.

As soon as a sufficient number of lots have been sold to justify it, the best of spring water will be brought through the town, the creek which crosses the eastern length of the site furnishing ample power for the purpose.

The Sellwood Ferry Guaranteed.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Sellwood Real Estate Co., held August 21, 1882, the following resolution was adopted:

"RESOLVED, That the Sellwood Real Estate Company hereby guarantee that they will keep a Ferry in operation between the town of Sellwood and Portland at present prices to residents of Sellwood for a period of two years, except when unavoidable accidents cause temporary suspension." H. L. PITTOCK, President.
F. C. THOMAS, Sec'y.

Prices of Lots.

HERBALISM

Is the oldest and grandest system of medical treatment in the world. It is the application of nature's simplest remedies for the removal of disorders set up by artificial life. It came in with Adam, and will go out with the last man. "And the fruit thereof shall be for meat and the leaf thereof shall be for medicine."—Ezekiel 47th chapter 12th verse. When universally practised in this and other countries there was small loss of life and men lived as a rule their allotted time and even far beyond. Mercury and the lancet caused more deaths in quiet sick beds than the sword and cannon on the field of battle. Reaction is taking place and common sense is asserting itself in the minds and conduct of the people, and the clever and accomplished herbalist becomes again the doctor for the million.

Asthma, Catarrh and Lung troubles cured by Dr. Perry Pratt astonished the best doctors in London and Paris, and yet he uses nothing but simple herbs. There is a disease which produces pains about the body that thousands of people treat for Rheumatism but are never cured. The pains occur about any part of the body, but are most apt to occur in one of the hip joints passing down the sciatic nerve; it is often called Sciatic Rheumatism. This disease affects the heart and the entire nerve system and is wasting and debilitating to the entire body. There is an absolute cure for this disease and those who may suffer in this respect will be informed of the cause of it and of its presence by an examination by Dr. Pratt, who on an examination of the action of the heart will point out the disease without asking a question.

HO KEE PO KEE!

The most nutricious, strengthening and blood cleansing Restorative known, when combined with our Indian Herb Pad, is a sure remedy for Catarrh, Coughs, Influenza, Inflammation of Bowels and Bladder, Dysentery, Billious Colic, Cholera Morbus, Colds, Fevers, Tape Worm, Chills and Fever, Dyspepsia, Fainting, Loss of Appetite, Palpitation of the Heart, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, and all diseases of the Blood, Liver and Stomach.

The Indian Herb Pad used in connection with Ho Kee Po Kee Herbs, have created intense excitement by the wonderful cures they have affected, reminding those who have used them of the last days of miracles.

TO THE PUBLIC.

It is generally conceded that the enterprise began in this city about five years ago, and known as the FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE, has met with a success unparalleled in the mercantile history of this State, and almost prodigious in its nature.

The cause underlying this success is not questioned any longer. It is simply this: The people of Oregon having for so long a time been the victims of grasping and unscrupulous dealers, having for so many years been ground under the iron heel of an avaricious guild, have at last had their eyes opened to the fact that their dollar, no less than anybody else's, is worth one hundred cents, and ought, by right, purchase as much as it in the hands of the merchant.

To the FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE is due the credit of having released the people from the oppressive yoke, of having redeemed them from their thraldom, and of having enlightened them upon a point so vital to their prosperity. This vexes these merchants who are unable to keep pace with the march of time, who are loth to accommodate themselves to smaller profits, and who never forget anything, because they never learn anything, and they cannot help themselves. They are spotted; the people have put the mark on them, while the FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE has become the household word in every family in the State, and is to them synonymous with honesty, integrity and fair dealing.

To take advantage of the fair fame of which the FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE has a right to boast, is something from which their competitors do not shrink. Their sense of honor does not deter them from stooping so low, and consequently it often occurs that when a party, for the first time in this city, happens to fall in their clutches, he is made to believe, when asking for the FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE, that he is just in the place he is looking for. By every device, chicanery and false representation he is thus deceived. This has occurred so often that the undersigned, proprietor of the above mentioned place, finds himself compelled to notify those who have so long subsisted upon this disreputable practice, that unless they cease their tactics, he will, though reluctantly, seek redress through the proper channel. He has, in accordance with the provisions of the law of the State, delivered to and had recorded in the office of the Secretary of State, the words "FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE," as a TRADE MARK, to be used as a sign and designation to his store. The undersigned does not propose to submit to an infringement upon his rights any longer. He is not for a moment so philanthropic as to quietly allow others to reap the benefit of his labor, and, above all, suffer his customers to be thus imposed upon. He therefore again warns and notifies all persons so using his Trade Mark in the future, that he will hold them strictly responsible for the same and prosecute them to the extent of the law, which provides as follows:

"Any person, partnership, firm or corporation that shall use, or cause to be used, any name, mark, brand, designation or description, the same as or SIMILAR to one so secured or recorded, for the purpose of deception or profit, shall forfeit to the use of the owner of the name, mark or brand, designation or description, so taken or imitated, one-half of the property, goods or articles of trade upon which the same may be used or placed, or the value thereof, to be recovered by the said owner in any court having jurisdiction of the subject matter."—Code of Oregon, Sec. 8, Chapter xxxiii, Miscellaneous Laws; page 685.

THE PRINCE OF WALES

His Health and the Public Ceremonies He has to Attend

[illegible]

[illegible] little more than a doz[illegible] weeks is made up of special occ[illegible] which he has been fain to aid or abstain from. Besides all this he has his regular duties as his mother's principal representative and in this was title as Prince of Wales which he is [illegible] to him. That most th[illegible] by no means all of his toils have the appearance of holiday making does not detract from the gravity of the task imposed and undergone. [illegible] pleasure when mutual [illegible] and continuous. It can scarcely be presumed ever to have had the character for those to whom, as to the Prince of Wales, it falls to help to organize a festivity and to be responsible for its results. If a charity dinner or a fancy bazaar can in any case be an amusement it certainly is not easily entertaining to the chairman or president. The singular merit of the Prince of Wales is that he discharges his part in each successive performance as if he were the guest instead of the host. Each particular scene of which he is the center might be the one rapturous gayety of his year, to judge from the brightness of his demeanor. He knows how to hit the just proportion between the gravity which is to bring about the aims of business and the seriousness of business which lends an excuse for the diversion. A finished actor could not be in more exact keeping with his personality of the hour than is the royal advocate of the obligations of citizen soldiership, the claims of art, the pathos of sickness and bereavement, the graces of high bred cattle, the benefits of cheap postage, the historic glories of corporate gold chains, the inscrutable destinies of metropolitan boards, the educational necessities of masons, cloth weavers and violinists, with one and all the various texts upon which he amiably and systematically discourses.

The Prince of Wales needs a holiday, though he may not be aware that he wants it. That he has submitted to take it at the instance of medical wisdom which considers mental as well as physical circumstances is a fresh argument of his royal good sense. If he is directed to temper his vacation with a course of mineral waters he may be sure that his system is condemned to imbibe no more salts and carbonates and alkalies than will constitute the minimum qualification for a moderate respite from the tyranny of society observances.

It is said that when a Bedouin chieftain clad in full toggery is seen by civilized troops for the first time, they take him for a procession of knights Templar going to a funeral and take off their hats and make respectful signals at him instead of shooting him. Burlington Hawkeye.

My Dear Miss: If you'll only be mine
You shall have every spring a new hat
And we'll live in the cosiest rooms
To be had in the gorgeous new flat.

My Dear Sir: I don't want to be yours.
Though, of course, I should like the new hat
Yet I never could make up my mind
To inhabit a flat with a flat.
—Courier Journal.

"I've lost a patient," said a doctor, sitting down to a boarding house dinner table with a frown on his face as dark as a gunpowder poultice. "I'm sorry to hear it." Man or woman?" asked one of the boarders. "Man." "When did he die?" "Die! hang him! he's not dead. He stopped taking my medicine, got well and ran away without paying the bill." —Arkansaw Traveler.

Two countrymen from Onion Creek came to an Austin lawyer to consult about bringing a joint suit against his neighbor. The first granger began to tell the lawyer the cause of the trouble, embellishing it rather liberally. "Don't tell him any lies, Bill," interrupted the other. "It is his business to put in the lies. You will get him confused if you go to mixing your lies with his." Texas Siftings.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

[illegible]

Some time ago Dr. [illegible] was struck with the constancy [illegible] of wheat. In 1,000,000 parts [illegible] there were 14 [illegible] and yield [illegible] parts in the [illegible] [illegible] that his gas burners were [illegible] ported in a platinum crucible.

There is a substance called cotton velvet made in China. It is very soft and durable [illegible] parts of water having a small admixture of wine and lime. After the velvet has been [illegible] and hung in the sun. This process is repeated 11 times and finally the texture is dampened carefully with a spray of slightly acidulated water.

At a meeting of the Academy of Sciences in Paris on August 21st experimental researches on the formation of craters in the moon were communicated by M. B[illegible]. He sends hot air through a brass tube into a melted but gradually cooling mass of W[illegible] alloy. The bubbling of the air forms a circular [illegible] first like a circus and then like a crater. [illegible] however the mass becomes pasty and forms a cone in the middle. Some slightly different effects were had with other alloys, such as a more broken up appearance of the [illegible]. An interruption of the current gave rise to the formation of two concentric craters.

It is stated that 150 tons of fresh Australian meat preserved in frozen state arrived on August 21st and was very dried out shortly afterward in excellent condition to the British fleet at Alexandria. On May 1st this meat was shipped at Sidney in the steamship Sorrento and brought through the Suez Canal in the hottest season. In all the cargo which was first taken to London consisted of 402,000 pounds of beef and mutton, where the British government bought 150 tons for the use of the sailors in Egyptian waters. This experiment has been a grand success, and it determined the sending of the Sorrento for another cargo.

On October 11 there will be a congress of electricians in Paris. Among other subjects to come before the members will be the determination of the length of the mercury column equivalent to the practical ohm, the construction of lightning conductors and the influence of telegraph and other wires on electric storms, the means of establishing a general system for observing electricity and the meteorological importance of the transmission of intelligence by electricity. A diplomatic congress will also consider the subject of telegraph cable protection. It is thought that M. Cochery will preside over the former meeting and M. Duclerc over the latter.

An effort has been made by Herr Victor Meyer to determine the color of pure water. He has found that it is a shade between blue and green. Taking two glass tubes 40 millimetres in diameter and about 1.5 metres in length, he connected them by means of rubber tubing, forming a tube about 7½ metres long. Both ends of this tube are fixed in glass plates and fitted with metal sockets which are provided with brass nozzles for filling the tube. All being arranged, the tube is placed in a perfectly horizontal position and covered with a black cloth. Upon looking through the empty tube the field of vision appears colorless as the cloth and the metal sockets prevent the glass from exerting any influence. As soon however as the tube is filled with distilled water, an intense bluish-green color is observed.

The president of the British Association for the advancement of science this year—Dr. Charles William Siemens—is not a native of Great Britain. When he was 19 years of age he arrived in England with a stout heart but with little or no money. He took with him from Germany some improvements in the methods of electro plating and a Birmingham firm taking hold of them he received his first substantial start in life. The present, or the fifty-second meeting of the association at Southampton, is not very likely to stand high in the annals of the organization. Yet the attendance was good and much solid work was reviewed. Year by year the trouble with the meetings is that the papers read by members simply sum up what had appeared from their own pens in special magazines or in the papers published under the authority or direct supervision of various scientific bodies. The memoirs have too stale a flavor for the most part in this age, which demands early publicity for any important work.

NOTICE OF FILING SUPPLEMENTARY ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE Oregon and Transcontinental Company, a corporation incorporated and organized under the laws of the State of Oregon, has filed Supplementary Articles of Incorporation for the purpose of engaging in the new enterprises or business pursuits in said supplementary articles mentioned, which enterprises are in said articles specified as follows:

The Oregon and Transcontinental Company hereby adopts the following Supplementary Articles of Incorporation in addition to the present Articles of Incorporation of said company for the purpose of engaging in the business and pursuit of laying out, constructing and equipping, maintaining and operating the hereinafter enumerated railroad and telegraph lines and branches and carrying freight and passengers thereon and of receiving tolls for the same, and of engaging in the other new enterprises or business pursuits herein specified, in addition to the enterprises described in its original articles and in the same manner as if there were inserted at the end of the twelfth clause or section of the first subdivision of Article III of the original articles the following subdivisions:

11th—A railroad and telegraph line from a point of junction with the Northern Pacific Railroad at or near the mouth of the Washtucna Coulee in the Territory of Washington in a generally easterly direction up said Washtucna Coulee by way of Rebel Flat to a point at or near the town of Moscow in Idaho Territory, with a branch line from a junction with said line near the mouth of Rebel Flat Creek in a generally northeasterly direction by way of Cottonwood Creek to the town of Farmington in said Territory of Washington.

And another branch line from a point of junction with said line about three miles west of the town of Colfax in the Territory of Washington through the town of Colfax and thence up the north branch of the Palouse river to its head.

13th. A railroad and telegraph line commencing at or near Sand Point station on the Northern Pacific railroad in the Territory of Idaho and following down the valley of Clarke's Fork of the Columbia river to its junction with the Columbia river, thence down the valley of the Columbia river to a point at or near the town of Ainsworth in Washington Territory.

15th. A railroad and telegraph line from a point on the Northern Pacific railroad at or near the town of Spokane Falls in the Territory of Washington, by the most practicable route via the valley of the Colville river to the junction of the said Colville river with the Columbia river in said territory.

16th. A railroad and telegraph line from, at or near the town of Spokane Falls, in the Territory of Washington, down the Spokane river to its mouth.

17th—A railroad and telegraph line from a point on the Northern Pacific railroad, at or near the town of Spokane Falls, in the Territory of Washington in a general northwesterly direction via the middle pass of the Grand Coulee to the Columbia river, about seven miles above Old Fort Okanagan, with a branch line from a junction with said line at said middle pass of the Grand Coulee, in a general westerly direction to the Columbia river at a point about ten miles above the mouth of the Wenatchee river.

18th—A railroad and telegraph line from a point on the Northern Pacific railroad near Lake Colville in the Territory of Washington in a generally westerly direction by the way of Sylvan Lake and Crab Creek, skirting the southern slope of the Badger Mountains to the Columbia river, crossing the said river at the most eligible point below the mouth of the Wenatchee river, thence up the Wenatchee river to its head, crossing the Cascade Mountains at Ward's Pass, thence down the Skykomish and Snohomish rivers to the town of Cadyville, thence in a northerly direction along the shore of Puget Sound to Fidalgo Island in said Territory of Washington.

19th. A railroad and telegraph line from a point at or near Thirty Mile Well Station, on the Northern Pacific railroad, in the Territory of Washington to Ring Gold Bar in the Columbia river, thence in a generally westerly direction by the most practicable route to Yakima City, thence up the Natches river crossing the Cascade Mountains at Natches Pass, thence in a generally northwesterly direction to the city of New Tacoma, in said Territory of Washington.

20th. A railroad and telegraph line from, at or near the town of Ainsworth, in Washington Territory, in a generally northwesterly direction up the Yakima river crossing the Cascade Mountains at Garfield pass, thence in a generally northeasterly direction to the city of Seattle, in the Territory of Washington.

21st. A railroad and telegraph line from a point of junction with the Northern Pacific railroad, at or near Lake Colville in Washington Territory, in a generally northerly direction to the Big Bend in the Columbia river in said territory.

22d. A railroad and telegraph line from a point of junction with the Northern Pacific railroad at or near Rathdrum Station, in Idaho Territory, in a southeasterly direction to Fort Coeur d'Alene in said territory.

23d. A railroad and telegraph line from a point at or near the town of Spokane Falls, on the line of the Northern Pacific railroad in Washington Territory, in a generally southeasterly direction a distance of about sixty miles up the valley of Hangman's Creek to its head in the Territory of Idaho.

24th. A railroad and telegraph line from a point on the Northern Pacific railroad at or near the town of Cheney, in the Territory of Washington, in a generally southeasterly direction to connect with the aforesaid line [illegible] Rebel Flat to the town of Farmington.

25th. A railroad and telegraph line from a point on the Columbia river at or near the mouth of [illegible] in Washington Territory [illegible]
